Executive Summary

The present report describes the compilation of the 2009 GIS updated dataset of AQMA (Air Quality Management Area) boundaries in the UK.

This dataset is annually compiled and updated on behalf of Defra by AEA and has been updated as part of the Pollution Climate Mapping Contract (CPEA15).

By utilising the information contained within the University of the West of England AQMA archive database, a list of local authorities in which the AQMAs had changed in any way was derived. In this list, 36 local authorities had declared new AQMAs or made revisions to existing AQMAs in 2008 and 1 local authority had revoked its AQMA. Due to historical issues, corrections have also been made to 30 local authorities (including 5 local authorities in which AQMAs were known to have been revoked). These local authorities were contacted via email and telephone to request from them a GIS dataset describing the location and boundary of their Air Quality Management Area(s). Different methods were then used to process the data received from local authorities.

The Appendices to the report contain the image maps showing the locations of the AQMAs, a lookup table of AQMA IDs and local authority names, and all attribute information for each AQMA, including the method used for processing the information received from the local authority.

1 Introduction

This report describes the compilation of the 2009 updated dataset of AQMA (Air Quality Management Area) boundaries in the UK. This dataset is annually compiled and updated on behalf of Defra by AEA as part of the Pollution Climate Mapping Contract (CPEA15).

The previous dataset, 2008 GIS updated dataset, as described in the 2008 report (AEAT 2008) was also compiled and updated on behalf of Defra by AEA as part of the Pollution Climate Mapping Contract (CPEA15). That dataset included the information on changes to AQMA boundaries up to December 2007. Before the 2008 GIS updated dataset, the previous datasets were compiled as part of the Neighbourhood Statistics on Ambient Air Quality Contract (RMP/2035). However, some historical issues were found contained in the previous datasets and corrections have now been made within the 2009 updated dataset.

Since the 2005 dataset was published, data requests have been received from several organisations including the Environment Agency, the Highways Agency and the Health Protection Agency.

We expect that this dataset will be useful in a variety of Defra studies assessing compliance with EU legislation and public exposure to poor air quality. There is an ongoing need for the dataset to be maintained and updated to reflect changes in AQMA declarations each year.

The datasets for 2005, 2006 and 2007 have been made available through the ONS Neighbourhood Statistics website (www.neighbourhood.statistics.gov.uk - select 'view or download data by topic' and navigate to 'physical environment' to find the AQMA dataset). The 2009 dataset is available from Defra's GIS unit (Carol.Hrynkiewiez@defra.gsi.gov.uk).

This report describes the method of compilation of the dataset. Maps showing the locations of the AQMAs and a list of all AQMAs are provided in the Appendices to this report.

2 Methodology

By utilising the information contained within the University of the West of England AQMA archive database, a list of local authorities in which the AQMAs had changed in any way since the preparation of the 2008 update (AEAT 2008) was derived. In this list, 36 local authorities had declared new AQMAs or made revisions to existing AQMAs in 2008 and 1 local authority had revoked its AQMA. Due to historical issues, corrections have also been made to 30 local authorities (including 5 local authorities in which AQMAs were known to have been revoked). These local authorities were contacted via email and telephone to request from them a GIS dataset describing the location and boundary of their Air Quality Management Area(s). Table 2.1a below shows the list of local authorities with new AQMAs declared or changes made to existing AQMAs in 2008. Table 2.1b lists the local authorities with revisions to AQMAs due to historical issues.

Data were received in a variety of formats: ESRI shapefiles, Adobe pdf files and images of varying formats. Data in each format required processing using a different method – described below. Table 2.2 shows how many AQMAs were processed using each method.

2.1 ESRI Shapefiles

All shapefiles were firstly imported into ArcView for processing. Some shapefiles were already in polygon format. These required no further processing.

The shapefiles containing only the linear boundary of the AQMA (polylines) were processed to produce AQMA areas (polygons) using an ArcView script. Some of the linear boundaries supplied had overlapping lines and gaps in the AQMA boundary. These required 'cleaning' using an editing tool before they could be converted to polygons.

2.2 MapInfo TAB and MID/MIF files

MapInfo format files were initially converted into ESRI shapefiles using the Universal Translator tool in MapInfo. Following this the shapefiles were imported into ArcView and processed as described in the shapefile methodology.

2.3 Image Files and Other Documentation

The boundaries of the AQMAs were digitised in ArcView using a combination of maps, images and descriptions. Raster map images from Ordnance Survey and the Ordnance Survey of Northern Ireland (OSNI) were used as a backdrop for this digitising. 1:10,000 and 1:25,000 scale raster maps were used.

2.4 Whole Borough AQMAs

Shapefiles of the borough boundaries were created from a local authority boundary dataset.

Table 2.2 Number of AQMAs processed using each method

AQMA Processing
File type received	Number of AQMAs processed using this method
ESRI Shapefiles	67
Image files and other documentation	25
MapInfo TAB and MID/MIF	9
Whole borough AQMAs	2
Total (All AQMAs)	103

The processed shapefiles for each AQMA were assigned unique IDs. These IDs are consistent with the IDs used in the database of AQMAs held on the Air Quality Archive (www.airquality.co.uk/archive/laqm/laqm.php). The IDs are listed in Appendices 2 and 3.

Revoked or amended AQMAs were removed from the previous years AQMA dataset. All the AQMAs were then merged together with the updated previous year AQMA dataset to form the 2009 updated United Kingdom AQMA dataset.

3 Data Gaps and Future Updates

One local authority has not yet contributed to the dataset and it is:

• Torbay Borough Council

The dataset will be updated again in 2010. This will be done using information from the University of the West of England database of AQMAs, and through communication with those local authorities who have made boundary changes or new declarations.

4 Dataset Copyright

The AQMAs that have been digitized using the OS raster maps retain the OS copyright inherent in the raster maps (© Crown Copyright. All rights reserved 2009). Defra's GIS division will distribute this dataset and provide a user license for Ordnance Survey derived data, which explains the limitations of its use. The text in the License agreement reads: "You may only use the Data for your own internal business use that is use of Data for the internal administration and operation of your business and not for any commercial purpose, and not for financial profit or gain. Financial gain would include any profit whether direct or indirect, or benefit from the use or publication of the Data in any form".

Derry and Strabane AQMAs have been digitised by using 1:25000 Ordnance Survey of Northern Ireland (OSNI) colour raster maps of Northern Ireland. These are based upon Ordnance Survey of Northern Ireland's data with the permission of the Controller of Her Majesty's Stationery Office, © Crown copyright and database rights.

5 AQMA Metadata and Maps

The table below provides descriptions of the field names used in the AQMA GIS dataset.

Table 5.1 The AQMA GIS dataset

Area_km2	The area of each Air Quality Management Area (km²)

Appendix 1 contains maps showing the locations of the AQMAs. A selection of maps is provided to illustrate the dataset. However, it is not possible to show the full details in this format. The reader is referred to the AQMA shapefile (available from Defra – see above) to fully appreciate the detail.

Appendix 2 provides a lookup table of AQMA IDs and local authority names

Appendix 3 contains attribute information for each AQMA, including the method used for processing the information received from the local authority. It also shows which AQMAs are new or revised in the 2009 dataset compared to 2008.

6 Conclusions and Recommendations

This report describes the 2009 updated United Kingdom AQMA dataset compiled for Defra.

It is important that the dataset remains accurate for future use.

Therefore, the dataset will be updated in 2010 by AEA on behalf of Defra and the Devolved Administrations.

We recommend that dataset be updated annually to ensure it is complete and accurate.

There is currently one AQMA missing from the dataset. It is:

• Torbay Borough Council

This AQMA will, if possible, be included in the 2010 version of the dataset.
