Executive Summary

The present report describes the compilation of the 2010 GIS updated dataset of AQMA (Air Quality Management Area) boundaries in the UK. This new dataset includes information on changes to AQMA boundaries up to December 2009.

This dataset is annually compiled and updated on behalf of Defra by AEA and has been updated as part of the Pollution Climate Mapping Contract (CPEA15).

The information contained within the University of the West of England AQMA archive database was used to derive a list of local authorities in which the AQMAs had changed in any way since the preparation of the 2009 update (Yap 2009). In this list, 31 local authorities had declared new AQMAs or made revisions to existing AQMAs in 2009 and 2 local authorities had revoked some of their AQMAs. These local authorities were contacted via email and telephone to request from them a GIS dataset describing the location and boundary of their Air Quality Management Area(s). Different methods were then used to process the data received from local authorities.

The Appendices to the report contain the image maps showing the locations of the AQMAs, a lookup table of AQMA IDs and local authority names, and all attribute information for each AQMA, including the method used for processing the information received from the local authority.

In 2009, eight new Local Authorities were created by combining several smaller Local Authorities. These new authorities are Central Bedfordshire, Chester East, Cheshire West & Chester, Cornwall, Durham, Northumberland, Shropshire and Wiltshire. The AQMA dataset was updated this year to take into account these new Local Authority names and codes.

1 Introduction

This report describes the compilation of the 2010 updated dataset of AQMA (Air Quality Management Area) boundaries in the UK. This dataset is annually compiled and updated on behalf of Defra by AEA as part of the Pollution Climate Mapping Contract (CPEA15). This new dataset includes information on changes to AQMA boundaries up to December 2009.

In 2009, eight new Local Authorities were created by combining several smaller Local Authorities. These new authorities are Central Bedfordshire, Chester East, Cheshire West & Chester, Cornwall, Durham, Northumberland, Shropshire and Wiltshire. The AQMA dataset was updated this year to take into account these new Local Authority names and codes.

The previous dataset, 2009 GIS updated dataset, as described in the 2009 report (Yap 2009) was also compiled and updated on behalf of Defra by AEA as part of the Pollution Climate Mapping Contract (CPEA15). That dataset included the information on changes to AQMA boundaries up to December 2008. Before the 2008 GIS updated dataset, the previous datasets were compiled as part of the Neighbourhood Statistics on Ambient Air Quality Contract (RMP/2035).

We expect that this dataset will be useful in a variety of Defra studies assessing compliance with EU legislation and public exposure to poor air quality. There is an ongoing need for the dataset to be maintained and updated to reflect changes in AQMA declarations each year.

The datasets for 2005, 2006 and 2007 have been made available through the ONS Neighbourhood Statistics website (www.neighbourhood.statistics.gov.uk - select 'view or download data by topic' and navigate to 'physical environment' to find the AQMA dataset). The 2009 dataset is available from Defra's GIS unit (Carol.Hrynkiewicz@defra.gsi.gov.uk).

This report describes the method of compilation of the dataset. Maps showing the locations of the AQMAs and a list of all AQMAs are provided in the Appendices to this report.

2 Methodology

The information contained within the University of the West of England AQMA archive database was used to derive a list of local authorities in which the AQMAs had changed in any way since the preparation of the 2009 update (Yap 2009). In this list, 31 local authorities had declared new AQMAs or made revisions to existing AQMAs in 2009 and 2 local authorities had revoked some of their AQMAs. These local authorities were contacted via email and telephone to request from them a GIS dataset describing the location and boundary of their Air Quality Management Area(s). Table 2.1 below shows the list of local authorities with new AQMAs declared or changes made to existing AQMAs in 2009.

Data were received in a variety of formats: ESRI shapefiles, Adobe pdf files and images of varying formats. Data in each format required processing using a different method – described below. Table 2.2 shows how many AQMAs were processed using each method.

2.1 ESRI Shapefiles

All shapefiles were firstly imported into ArcMap for processing. Some shapefiles were already in polygon format. These required no further processing.

2.2 MapInfo TAB and MID/MIF files

MapInfo format files were initially converted into ESRI shapefiles using the Universal Translator tool in MapInfo. Following this the shapefiles were imported into ArcView and processed as described in the shapefile methodology.

2.3 Image Files and Other Documentation

The boundaries of the AQMAs supplied as pdf files were digitised in ArcMap using the shapefiles that have been prepared internally for the purpose of Pollution Climate Mapping (PCM). The shapefiles were used as a backdrop for this digitising. These shapefiles consist of major roads, b roads and minor roads across the UK in the correct coordinates.

Table 2.2 Number of AQMAs processed using each method

AQMA Processing
File type received	Number of AQMAs processed using this method
ESRI Shapefiles	58
Image files and other documentation	2
MapInfo TAB and MID/MIF	2
Total (All AQMAs)	62

The processed shapefiles for each AQMA were assigned unique IDs. These IDs are consistent with the IDs used in the database of AQMAs held on the Air Quality Archive (www.airquality.co.uk/archive/laqm/laqm.php). The IDs are listed in Appendices 2 and 3.

Revoked or amended AQMAs were removed from the previous years AQMA dataset. All the AQMAs were then merged together with the updated previous year AQMA dataset to form the 2010 updated United Kingdom AQMA dataset.

3 Data Gaps and Future Updates

Three local authorities have not yet fully contributed to the dataset and therefore any new AQMAs have not been included. The three local authorities are:

- Cornwall Council
- West Berkshire Council
- Wyre Forest District Council

The dataset will be updated again in 2011. This will be done using information from the University of the West of England database of AQMAs, and through communication with those local authorities who have made boundary changes or new declarations.

4 Dataset Copyright

The AQMAs that have been digitized using the OS raster maps retain the OS copyright inherent in the raster maps (© Crown Copyright. All rights reserved 2010). Defra's GIS division will distribute this dataset and provide a user license for Ordnance Survey derived data, which explains the limitations of its use. The text in the License agreement reads: "You may only use the Data for your own internal business use that is use of Data for the internal administration and operation of your business and not for any commercial purpose, and not for financial profit or gain. Financial gain would include any profit whether direct or indirect, or benefit from the use or publication of the Data in any form".

5 AQMA Metadata and Maps

The table below provides descriptions of the field names used in the AQMA GIS dataset.

Appendix 1 contains maps showing the locations of the AQMAs. A selection of maps is provided to illustrate the dataset. However, it is not possible to show the full details in this format. The reader is referred to the AQMA shapefile (available from Defra – see above) to fully appreciate the detail.

Appendix 2 contains attribute information for each AQMA, including the local authority name and the method used for processing the information received from the local authority. It also shows which AQMAs are new or revised in the 2010 dataset compared to 2009.

6 Conclusions and Recommendations

This report describes the 2010 updated United Kingdom AQMA dataset compiled for Defra and the Devolved Administrations.

It is important that the dataset remains accurate for future use.

We recommend that dataset be updated annually to ensure it is complete and accurate.

Therefore, the dataset will be updated in 2011 on behalf of Defra and the Devolved Administrations.

There are currently three AQMAs missing from the dataset. They are:

- Bodmin AQMA (Cornwall Council)
- Newbury AQMA (West Berkshire Council)
- Kidderminster (Ring Road) AQMA (Wyre Forest District Council)

These AQMAs will, if possible, be included in the 2011 version of the dataset.
